Facilitator Training

A Train the Trainer Workshop

Project WILD in Alabama:

In Fall 2017 Alabama Cooperative Extension System (ACES) 4-H assumed state coordination duties for Project WILD in our state. We are working in partnership with the Association of Fish & Wildlife Agencies (AFWA) to administer the program and provide training opportunities and support resources to our statewide constituents. Project WILD consists of five activity guides: Project WILD, Proyecto WILD, Aquatic WILD, Flying WILD, and Growing Up WILD. An important step in rejuvenating Project WILD in Alabama is for ACES to train a new group of Project WILD facilitators and to provide a refresher training to those facilitators that have been conducting Project WILD workshops prior to the above mentioned change.

What is a Project WILD facilitator?

A Facilitator is someone trained by the State Coordinator to conduct Project WILD workshops for both formal and informal educators using at least one of the Project WILD environmental education activity guides. Once a facilitator completes training, he/she will work with the State Coordinator to offer educator workshops as needed within Alabama.

Who can become a Project WILD facilitator?

Any adult that has the skills to conduct workshops for informal and formal educators, loves nature and teaching others about the natural environment, and willing to work as a volunteer in fulfilling facilitator duties including reporting directly to the State Coordinator.
