

Population it serves

The Ombuds office at Auburn University is designed to serve the informal conflict resolution needs of all employees of the Auburn campus and Auburn University including faculty, staff, and administrative and professional employees.

The office was designed this year as a two-year pilot program to be specifically located on the Auburn campus and to serve all Auburn employees. However, as Extension is a very important component of the Auburn campus and Auburn University, it seems reasonable that the Ombuds office is available to serve folks not just located on the Auburn campus but [who] are affiliated and attached with Auburn through Extension or through the Experiment Station.
