FRIENDS HELPING ALABAMA

Help Our Alabama Friends Recover From Tornado Damage

The Alabama Cooperative Extension System is committed to supporting Alabama families and youth facing the aftermath of the devastating April 27 tornadoes. The path of destruction was immense and, in some cases, followed the same path as tornadoes earlier in the month. Families lost loved ones; homes and livelihoods were lost. While these families are literally picking up the pieces, they will receive immediate attention and aid from federal and state agencies and volunteer organizations. Extension is among both groups, providing hands-on help. Another effective way to assist our friends is to make donations to support the recovery. Donations made to the Alabama 4-H Foundation will be used to benefit the youth and 4-H club members in the affected areas. Addressing the needs of youth who have felt the impact of the tornado damage is critical to their well-being and to their futures.
