

PROJECT WORK

Alabama 4-H young people learn, lead, and make a difference.

Head, Heart, Hands & Health

4-H young people learn workforce development skills such as time-management, networking, and accountability in addition to cognitive skills used in critical thinking, reading, science, and mathematics.

The Bottom Line

Project work teaches young people how to set goals, make decisions, follow-through with a commitment, and self-evaluate their work and present it to others.
