

Season 1 Episode 1 — Let's Talk About Land & Legacy

May 1, 2025

Jamie Mardis

The “On the Heir” podcast is designed to provide accurate, authoritative information about the subject matter covered for educational purposes only. The information in this podcast does not and is not intended to constitute legal advice.

Jamie Mardis

You’re live with “On the Heir”, where the airwaves are buzzing with stories of land, legacy and lineage. I'm your host, Jamie, and I'm here to guide you through the world of heirs property ownership in Alabama, particularly in farming and forestry. This podcast is all about helping you navigate the complexity of inherited land, unlocking financial opportunities, and finding solutions to land ownership.

Jamie Mardis

So, get ready to groove with us as we explore the twists and turns of managing and preserving your family land.

Jamie Mardis

Now, before we get too far into the groove, let's talk about exactly what heirs property is. Imagine this, a piece of land passed down through generations, but instead of having a single owner, it's divided among multiple heirs. Kind of like a playlist with too many DJs, each trying to play their own tune. This often happens when there's no clear deed to show ownership or formal estate plan, leaving the property in legal limbo.

Jamie Mardis

It's a common issue in Alabama, especially with rural land. And it can lead to all sorts of challenges in both farming and forestry. But rest easy. That's what I'm here for. We're going to turn up the volume on how to manage heirs property from dealing with legal hurdles to understanding your rights as a landowner. We'll cover how to preserve family legacies while sustaining the land.

Jamie Mardis

And we'll dive into the legal, financial, and environmental aspects of managing inherited property. Over the course of this podcast. We'll explore everything from navigating legal challenges to environmental conservation. Whether you're interested in protecting family farmland or managing a family forest, there's a lot to uncover. We'll look at the historical roots of heirs property. Think periods of economic and social change and how those past events still influenced land ownership today.

Jamie Mardis

It's a rich tapestry of history, culture and legal complexity. And trust me, it's not all doom and gloom. Yes, there are legal issues like partition actions and financial challenges. But we're going to shine a light on the solutions. Our future episodes will take you through the practical steps, whether it's formalizing ownership through legal agreements or exploring sustainable farming and forestry practices that benefit both your family and the land.

Jamie Mardis

So, what can you expect in episodes to come? We'll be digging into Alabama specific laws, understanding how heirs property can be managed sustainably, and hearing from experts who can help guide us. Whether you're new to this or you've been managing family land for years, we'll provide insights to help you protect your legacy and keep your land thriving. In the next episode of "On the Heir", we'll be diving into the Uniform Partition of Heirs Property Act, a critical piece of legislation that helps protect family land from forced sales.

Jamie Mardis

I'm excited to be joined by our special guest, Katy Keown, an expert in heirs property law, who will help us break down what this means for heirs property owners in Alabama. You won't want to miss this one. Tune in as we explore how this law could impact your legacy.

Jamie Mardis

"On the heir is a product of Auburn University and the Alabama Cooperative Extension System. Support for this program is provided by the Beginning Farmers and Ranchers Development Program, project award no. 2023-49400-40876 from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's National Institute of Food and Agriculture. Any opinions, findings, conclusions, or recommendations expressed in this podcast are those of the participants and should not be construed to represent any official USDA or U.S. Government determination or policy. More information about activities and publications related to heirs property in Alabama can be found by visiting our website at www.aces.edu/go/heirsproperty." "On the Heir" podcast is not engaged in rendering legal, accounting or other professional counsel. If legal advice or other expert assistance is required, please seek the advice of services of competent professionals.

Jamie Mardis

Thanks for jamming out with us on “On the Heir”. Be sure to subscribe! Leave us a review and share your thoughts with this. Together we'll continue to explore the fascinating world of heirs property. One episode at a time. Until then, keep protecting your legacy.